Division and fascism strike America when 'Lucky Lindy' becomes president in HBO's 'The Plot Against America'

It's November 1940 and aviation hero Charles Lindbergh has just defeated Franklin Delano Roosevelt in the presidential election. What lay ahead for the people of the United States are deep divisions and rampant anti-semitism as the xenophobic populist turns the country toward fascism.

That's the alternate history premise of "The Plot Against America," a six-part miniseries premiering Monday, March 16, on HBO. Written and executive produced by David Simon ("The Wire") and Ed Burns ("The Brothers McMullen"), the series views the storyline through the eyes of a working-class Jewish family in Newark, N.J.

Herman Levin (Morgan Spector, "Homeland") is a family man and insurance agent with ambition and many opinions and he isn't enthralled with the new chief executive. Neither is his homemaker wife Bess (Zoe Kazan, "Ruby Sparks"), especially when they both notice anti-Jewish sentiment roiling in their community during a house-hunting excursion with their sons Philip and Sandy (Azhy Robertson, Caleb Malis).

Bess's sister Evelyn (Winona Ryder, "Stranger Things") also isn't particularly crazy about the new president but she is very fond of one of his key supporters, Rabbi Lionel Bengelsdorf (John Turturro, "The Night Of"), so in the interest of perhaps snagging a husband, the middle-aged woman starts attending pro-Lindbergh rallies, unbeknownst to her family.

The story is based on the 2004 Philip Roth novel of the same name, which Simon feels has particular resonance today.

"I think it's fairly apparent that the political paradigm that's now — not only in America, but internationally you're seeing it, in terms of populism and nationalism and the rise of xenophobia and fear of the other, that's the reason this got made," Simon explains. "... Somebody came to me with the book about five years ago ... and said, 'I think this would make a great miniseries.' And I said to him, 'I enjoyed the novel. It's a nice little artifact. It was fascinating in its moment, but ... that doesn't seem to be our political moment.'

"So, you know, how wrong was I?" he continues. "The reason to do this is that ... because of the forces that are now in play politically, the piece is incredibly relevant."

Comparisons have been made to the Amazon series "The Man in the High Castle," which imagines life in an America had Axis powers won World War II, but Kazan insists this is a completely different beast.

"It isn't about the Nazis conquering America," she argues. "It's about American ideology being turned into a nationalistic, edging on fascistic ideology. It's about how our thinking can be turned so easily and it's really about in some ways the history of our country, those ideologies coming to the fore and that it could happen again."

"It will," Simon agrees. "There will always be a moment at which there is some political advantage to saying, 'Somebody is less American.' And you should be worried about that."

'JUMANJI: THE NEXT LEVEL"

Dwayne Johnson scored one of his biggest hits with the update of the Robin Williams-starring fantasy-comedy-adventure, so the game is on again with this sequel directed and co-written Jake Kasdan. Johnson, Kevin Hart, Jack Black and Karen Gillan again play the avatars used by several young friends to enter a video game, this time in search of one of their own (Alex Wolff) who has vanished inside the alternate universe with his grandfather and a family friend (portrayed by two famous Dannys, DeVito and Glover respectively). The group, not surprisingly, faces various atmospheres and perils in the course of the hunt. Of course, the picture's special-effects team has a field day with the "anything goes" premise that yields plot twists and inventive visuals. Johnson also is among the movie's producers; Madison Iseman, Ser'Darius Blain and Morgan Turner return as the other youthful pals. DVD extras: three "making-of" documentaries.  (PG-13: AS, P) (Also on Bluray and 4K Ultra HD)

"RICHARD JEWELL"

Clint Eastwood is a specialist in telling stories of ordinary people in extraordinary situations, and it's the case once more with this latest project he directed, recalling the true situation of a security guard hailed as a hero for saving lives in a bombing during the 1996 Summer Olympics ... but then is suspected of being the person who planted the explosives. Eastwood's best move was to cast a relative unknown in the title role, though that actor is surrounded by familiar faces. Paul Walter Hauser does quite a good job as Jewell, who takes himself a bit too seriously when he's on patrol but gets endless encouragement and support from his mother, played by recent Oscar nominee Kathy Bates. His time to shine arises during that fateful moment in Atlanta, but just as auickly as he's celebrated, he becomes vilified after a former boss arouses suspicions about what Jewell did. That gets the FBI and reporters interested and though the respective roles are well-played by Jon Hamm and Olivia Wilde, people who actually have those careers aren't likely to be fans of how they're depicted here. Sam Rockwell comes off a bit better as the attorney who agrees to represent Jewell against his accusers. DVD extra: "makingof" documentary.  (R: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"BLACK CHRISTMAS"

Filmed twice before, this horror premise is an easy one - maybe too easy - to go back to for some simple holiday-season chills. Sorority sisters again become targets of an unknown attacker, but it's interesting to note that this version was directed by a woman (Sophia Takal, who also wrote the film with April Wolfe). Imagen Poots plays the central heroine who tries to protect herself and her friends from the threat, and the tale generally goes through the traditional motions of the genre, replete with climactic twists that devotees of such films may see coming from a mile away. Brittany O'Grady ("Star"), Cary Elwes and Madeleine Adams are among other members of the cast. ★★ (PG-13: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"CRASHING: THE COMPLETE THIRD SEASON"

Pete Holmes wrapped up his HBO sitcom with this final round of the personal and professional misadventures of a stand-up comedian. Here, in one of the main story arcs, the fictionalized Pete gets a new girlfriend (Madeline Wise) who's alarmed by his still-close friendship with his ex (Jamie Lee). Fellow comic John Mulaney appears as himself in what turned out to be the series' finale. An executive producer of the show alona with Holmes, Judd Apatow was involved in writing and/or directing some of the episodes. ★★★ (Not rated: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray)

"A HIDDEN LIFE"

From acclaimed writer-director Terrence Malick ("Days of Heaven," "Badlands"), famous for taking his time in turning out product, this long but involving drama recounts the true story of an Austrian farmer (played by August Diehl) who initially refused to join in the Nazi effort during World War II - despite having trained for such duty. Imprisoned for treason, he tries to keep his relationship with his wife (Valerie Pachner) strong while she tends to the family farm and is made an outcast by others who have yielded to the Third Reich's demands. Though set against the canvas of world history, this is very much in line with the personal stories that always have been Malick's specialties.  (PG-13: AS, P, V) (Also on Bluray and On Demand)

Newgarden shows talent at the track and on Twitter

Call him Josef Newgarden, two-time NTT IndyCar Series champion and accomplished tweeter.

On Sunday, Feb. 16, the veteran driver of the No. 2 Dallara Chevrolet for Team Penske took to Twitter to offer snarky and often hilarious commentary during the rain delay of the Daytona 500, the NASCAR Cup series season opener.

"Before we run the Daytona 500, we must run the Daytona 500 of pace laps," was one Newgarden remark while another asked, "I've got 10 mins. left in 'The Irishman' Is the race starting soon?"

And then came his list of things he could be doing during the interminable delay, which included solving a Rubix Cube, getting several online degrees, rewatching the "Lord of the Rings" trilogy and building a barn. The race eventually would be rescheduled for the following day, but Newgarden had made his point with his followers. He was frustrated and he wanted everyone to know it. Those on his feed ate it up.

He'll make his presence felt at his own season opener Sunday, March 15, on NBC Sports Network, when he and 23 other drivers take to the 1.8-mile, 14-turn street course in the Firestone Grand Prix of St. Petersburg.

He won here a year ago, riding a smart pit strategy to a commanding early lead from which he never looked back to beat Scott Dixon and Will Power to the checkered flag. The victory was his first of four on his way to the 2019 Series title.

It's a performance and a season the 29-year-old Tennessean wouldn't mind repeating.

Bravo's 'Top Chef' heads to La-La Land for Season 17

Season 17 finds Bravo's "Top Chef" In Los Angeles for a battle of returning contestants who couldn't quite bag the grand prize in previous competitions.

Premiering Thursday, March 19, the round of episodes titled "All Stars LA" brings back 10 finalists and five frontrunners from past seasons to vie in iconic locations across the Los Angeles area – from the Griffith Observatory and the Getty Center to the Los Angeles Coliseum and the Walt Disney Concert Hall – in pursuit of a series record $250,000 grand prize. Those who make it through the preliminary rounds, as determined by judges Tom Colicchio and Gail Simmons, will fly off to Italy for the final. As in seasons past, Padma Lakshmi will be the host.

As usual, there will be pressure as the chefs have to work against the clock to create their dishes. Within that context, they'll also have to contend with numerous Elimination and Quickfire Challenges, one of which this season is a campfire-inspired test that tasks a chef in a mountain cabin with recreating a famous chef's dish while being guided over the phone by a family member — with the twist being that the family member may or may not know what they're tasting and, hence, describing.

Colicchio laughs as he recalls the challenge.

"I thought it was funny where some of them, like the person who would walk them through it, had no idea they were talking about fish," he says. "So you're at a disadvantage when your family member has no idea what they're eating. But it's fun, it's actually a fun challenge. You know, when someone has to describe to you what the dish is and you have to try to recreate it, that's fun."

Less fun, for the chefs at least, is working within a limited time frame. Some can do it well, but others don't manage their time properly, and still others get too ambitious and run over their allotment. Failure occurs and stress and frustration set in.

"Plus, 16 hours a day, they're on camera," Colicchio notes, "or they're cooking for a Quickfire Elimination or they're being interviewed. And so there's no downtime, and then when they get home, there's a lot of interaction. They're not sleeping enough, so there's an exhaustion, especially once they get halfway through.

"You hear it all the time," continues Colicchio. "These are chefs who are used to spending long hours on their feet, and halfway through they start going, 'I had no idea it was going to be this hard.' That's always the thing, too ... and then mentally, you start breaking down when you're tired."
