Family time is special, but in one case, it's about to end. After 11 seasons and numerous awards including Emmys for outstanding comedy series for each of its first five years plus separate Emmy wins for co-stars Julie Bowen, Ty Burrell and Eric Stonestreet, "Modern Family" closes up shop with its last ABC episode Wednesdvay, April 8. Though it's been long known that the finale for the intertwined Pritchett and Dunphy clans was coming, that doesn't make the actual ending any easier for cast and crew members who have been together for, in many cases, over a decade.

"Had we ended it last season, I think it would have probably revolved around the birth of the new babies," reflects "Modern Family" executive producer and co-creator Steven Levitan, "but since we went past that point, we were in uncharted territory. It's something that we had been thinking about for about a year-and-a-half, once we knew we were going into Season 11. We talked about it all the time, potential places that we could end it so that we could build some things in that led to that nicely." (One such "thing" was the characters' recent trip to Paris.)

Looking back on the history of "Modern Family," co-star Jesse Tyler Ferguson – alias the show's Mitchell Pritchett – cites making the 2009 pilot episode as forever special.

"I will always remember meeting this group of people for the first time," he says. "We all auditioned at separate times, and we were put together in separate rooms ... but the first time we all came together in preparation for the big network table read for the pilot, it was an immediate connection. I remember Sofia (Vergara) giving everyone hugs. I was like, 'This is the nicest, most beautiful woman I've ever met in my entire life, and she gets to play my stepmother. This is going to be so exciting.' It all felt very natural very early on."

Cast regular Vergara has relished bringing the glamorous, comically word-mangling Gloria Ramirez-Pritchett to life. "It was a gift to land a show like 'Modern Family," she notes, "because I never thought that sounding like this, I was going to be able to get a job that was so successful, being seen all over the world with a cast so amazing.

To be able to get all the opportunities that I got, to be able to expand my brand and do all the business things that I wanted, it was all a gift to me. I am super-sad that it's ending, but of course, I'm looking for the next thing (which, for Vergara, is this summer's season of NBC's 'America's Got Talent') like everybody else."

"LITTLE WOMEN"

Louisa May Alcott's classic is one of the most-filmed stories of all time, so is another version of it really necessary? Maybe not, but if you love solid and enjoyable moviemaking, you'll be glad it exists anyway. Tackling the tale was a passion project for actress turned director-screenwriter Greta Gerwig, and her love for it shows in every department, including in the costume design that won an Oscar ... and certainly in the casting, as she enlists her "Lady Bird" star Saoirse Ronan to play Jo, arguably the pivotal sister among the March siblings of 1800s New England. Emma Watson, Florence Pugh and Eliza Scanlan play the other sisters

- and while each has her own story to varying degrees, it's when they're together that the drama logically draws the most emotional power. Laura Dern also contributes to that as their mother, and there's a clearly notable turn by Meryl Streep as a rich relative. By definition, this is a tale primarily built for its female characters, but Timothee Chalamet (also working for Gerwig again after "Lady Bird"), Bob Odenkirk and a particularly affecting Chris Cooper are among those playing men in the ladies' world. DVD extras: six "making-of" documentaries.** (PG: AS) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"CATS"

Uh-oh. Herewith, the home-video debut of the movie that recently prompted the question, should certain shows just stay on the stage? At a safe distance in a liveperformance theater, this musical is utterly captivating as limber performers embody felines without camera close-ups forcing the actors to resemble authentic cats. Yes, there's a certain kick initially in seeing such familiar talents as Taylor Swift, Jennifer Hudson, Idris Elba, Judi Dench, Rebel Wilson, James Corden and Ian McKellen looking like cats .... but before long, the gimmick starts to wear thin, even souped up by modern movie technology under director Tom Hooper. The story, such as it is, involves the felines trying to earn the chance to ascend to cat heaven and be reborn (you know, cats having nine lives and all that). Elba's sinister character Macavity wants to remove all of his rivals for that opportunity - among them, a former beauty whose aging leads to the standout song "Memory," rendered with the expected power by Hudson. With its Andrew Lloyd Webber and T.S. Eliot background and its impressive cast, it's easy to see where this seemed like a good idea for a film, but "Cats" may well kill your curiosity in this case. DVD extras: 10

"making-of" documentaries. ★★ (PG: AS) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"DOLITTLE"

It probably looked good on paper ... Robert Downey Jr. as the screen's latest take on Dr. Dolittle, the quirky medic famously known for talking to animals - and them talking back to him. Downey's longpracticed brand of irony brings something new to the part, but not necessarily what it needs. Instead of exuding warmth, this Dr. Dolittle seems to want the animals to get out of his way, much less talk to him. Mourning the death of his wife, Dolittle has a patron in Queen Victoria (Jessie Buckley), who needs his professional help when she's felled by a mysterious illness. He then sets sail to find a cure, but others aren't keen on his succeeding for various reasons; they include his hostile ex-father-in-law, played by Antonio Banderas. The "animal" voice cast is pretty stellar, marked by Oscar winners Emma Thompson, Rami Malek, Marion Cotillard and Octavia Spencer, plus Ralph Fiennes and John Cena for good and varied measure. In the end, though, this "Dolittle" is quite the mish-mash .. even as directed and co-written by another Academy Award winner, Stephen Gaghan of "Traffic" and "Syriana" fame. DVD extras: six "making-of" documentaries. ★★ (PG: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray, 4K Ultra HD and On Demand)

Fun facts about the Kentucky Derby

The 146th running of the Kentucky Derby was postponed from May 2 to Sept. 5, so fans might as well use the extra time to familiarize themselves with some interesting facts ahead of horse racing's premiere event at Churchill Downs.

Few sporting events are shrouded in history and tradition as much as the Kentucky Derby. Billed as the "the fastest 2 minutes in sports," the Derby began in 1875 and is celebrated each year on the first Sunday in May.

Many horse racing fans make entire weekends out of the Derby, planning their celebrations months in advance of the race. For those who cannot travel to Churchill Downs and attend the race in person, viewing parties are available all over the globe.

The pageantry surrounding the Kentucky Derby is well documented, but the following are a few interesting tidbits about the famed "Run for the Roses."

◆ The Kentucky Derby began when Meriwether Lewis Clark traveled to Europe and attended the Epsom Derby in England. Clark was inspired to create a similar horse racing event in America.

◆ Each year, roughly 120,000 mint juleps are consumed at Churchill

Downs. Th mint julep is the traditional drink of the Derby, and it is made with Kentucky bourbon, simple syrup, mint, crushed ice, and powdered sugar.

- ◆ Secretariat is the fastest horse in Derby history, crossing the finish line in less than 2 minutes.
- ♦ There have been 19 winning horses in Kentucky Derby history whose names begin with the letter "S".
- ◆ On Derby Day, the infield at Churchill Downs will host 80,000 celebrants.

↑ The Kentucky Derby race track is 1¼ miles, which has been the standard since 1896. The first Derby races were slightly longer, at 1½ miles.

◆ Elegantly dressed women donning overthe-top hats will grace Churchill Downs for the race. Many begin planning their styles and securing their hats weeks in advance.

- ♦ Male horses win the race more often than females. Of the 40 fillies to compete throughout Derby history, only three have won.
- ♦ The best finish for a female jockey at the Derby was fifth place. Rosie Napravnik finished fifth while riding Mylute in 2013.
- ◆ "The Run for the Roses" refers to the red rose blanket that will be draped over the winner of the Derby.

Bryson DeChambeau muscles up to hit the links

In the category of athletes who bulk up to turn themselves into big hitters, we present for your consideration Bryson DeChambeau.

Indeed, the 26-year-old native of Modesto, Calif., took time away from the golf course over the winter to add 25 pounds of muscle to his 6-feet-1-inch frame in an effort to turn himself into the type of player that can effectively challenge some of the longer holes on the PGA TOUR.

And if some early performances are any indication, it appears he's been successful. Since returning in late January, he has led two tournaments (the WGC-Mexican Open and the Arnold Palmer Invitational) in average driving distance through early March, while finishing third and 15th in two others. On the season, he leads the PGA in that category at 321.3 yards, up from his middle-of-the-pack average of 302.5 in 2019.

But as the saying goes, you drive for show and putt for dough, and in that area DeChambeau is still waiting. Although he hasn't yet won a tournament in 2020, he is encouraged by his performance, saying he's feeling healthier than ever and looking forward to the future.

'The Food Ranger' scopes out authentic Asian street food on CuriosityStream

Travel with Trevor James and you'll likely it. I'll never forget the first bowl of hot chili find yourself changing countries with regularity.

While he's based (at the moment) in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, the Vancouver native and his wife Ting have in past five years traveled all over Asia, the Middle East and Mexico to bring his YouTube subscribers the best in authentic regional cuisine with an emphasis on street food on "The Food Ranger."

Now, the series comes to CuriosityStream, where in 12 episodes he explores the culinary scenes in China and India, two of his favorite cuisines. In those countries, he samples (among other comestibles) dumplings, noodles and crepes in the ancient silk city of Xi'an, China; dum biryani in Hyderabad, India; seafood and scrambled eggs in Mumbai; and smoked duck, tripe salad and spicy pork brain in Chengdu, China, a hotbed of Szechuan cuisine.

"I remember the first time I traveled to Chengdu," James says. "The spice was really nice but it's more about the fragrance and how unique the food is there. And of course, the people are so friendly. The people are so friendly in China and in Chengdu it was even more so. I found a relaxed atmosphere. It was a really nice place to live and Szechuan cuisine is spicy and delicious and I really fell in love with oil wontons."

Indeed, those Chinese dumplings look sumptuous on screen and James says they taste even better. And best, a typical meal costs only a few dollars in U.S. currency.

"One of my favorite meals in China ... is the wonton and the dandan noodle and the zha jiang noodle and their use of chili oil and peppercorn, and it's just so delicious.," James says. "Everywhere you go, little street stalls, little hole-in-the-wall restaurants, you can order up chili oil wontons and you can order up dandan noodles and it's just incredible, really delicious. ... I would always hit the street and go for Chengdu noodles and Chengdu wontons whenever we lived there."

James and his wife, who also is his videographer, are literally a force of two who typically spend two weeks in a location shooting episodes and then move on to the next. With no formal base, the road is this couple's home and because of that they have an ambitious plan going forward.

"We were just kind of joking around," James says. "We were saying, 'Well, why don't we just go to every country in the world?' And we thought, 'Let's do it!' So ... our goal is to visit all 190-plus countries. I think we've been to about 30 already, so if we do one or two every month, it should take 10 years."

Dead: Resurrection" From Great Britain comes this 2012 horror movie about a family struggling to survive when the dead rise during a zombie apocalypse. Sule Rimi, Kathy Saxondale, Lee Bane, Richard Goss and Mel Stevens head the cast of unknowns for director James Plumb ("Silent Night, Bloody Night: The Homecoming").

"Movie: Man on a Ledge"

This 2012 melodrama stays true to its title, though there's a bit more to it. Sam Worthington plays the man perched on a New York ledge, an ex-cop who's the prime suspect in a diamond theft. As his precarious position draws the attention of the media and a police negotiator (Elizabeth Banks), his brother (Jamie Bell) works across the street on a plan to clear his name and expose the true culprits. Kyra Sedgwick, Ed Harris and Edward Burns also star.

"Movie: A Good Old

The title indeed describes the central event in this comedy, with Jason Sudeikis ("Saturday Night Live") heading the cast as a fellow whose legendary summer parties are on the verge of ending, for a variety of reasons. He decides to stage a final pullout-all-stops gathering, but he has trouble getting the usual attendees to commit to return. The acting ensemble includes Sudekis' former "SNL" crony Will Forte as well as Leslie Bibb, Lake Bell and Tyler
