'The Masked Singer' spawns 'The Masked Dancer' as new Fox contest debuts

If there can be a "Masked Singer," why not a "Masked Dancer"?

Well, there can be, and Fox is giving the latest entry in the franchise a special advance debut Sunday, Dec. 27. (The show then settles into its regular time period by assuming "Singer's" usual Wednesday slot Jan. 6.) The premise is similar, as celebrities in elaborate costumes display their dancing aptitude while viewers try to guess along with the series' panel who's inside the outfits.

Based on a segment featured on Ellen DeGeneres' weekday talk show (she's an executive producer here), "The Masked Dancer" offers actor-comedian Craig Robinson ("The Office") as host. Current Fox staple Ken Jeong is a panelist, as are singer-choreographer and "American Idol" veteran Paula Abdul, "Beverly Hills, 90210" alum Brian Austin Green and singer-actress Ashley Tisdale.

"It is something new for me, but it's really fun," the friendly Green maintains. "There's nothing really negative; that's just not part of the process. The voting is for the person you want to see the most, not the person you enjoyed the least. It's all in good fun, and everybody who works on this show seems to have a good time, so it's a cool experience. It's nice to be a part of something as positive as this show is."

Green did a "Masked Singer" guest stint this past season as that show's "Giraffe," and he confirms that made him prone to sign up for "The Masked Dancer" when the opportunity arose. "I was in rehearsal for weeks, I had to have wardrobe fittings, it was a whole process – and when I was doing the performance stuff, I realized, 'Oh. The panelists just come in for this. That's the job to have!'

At the same time, his giraffe stint has given Green an appreciation for what "Masked" guests do: "It was really hard to sing and move, because you have a very limited view inside the costume. The costumes are so tailored for a show like this, the masks are smaller and you have a much better field of vision. And the costumes are much easier to move in. It's just so impressive that these people can do what they're doing. They're not just little moves, they're fully choreographed numbers.

Being back on Fox, where he spent a decade as "90210's" David Silver (and then on "Terminator: The Sarah Connor Chronicles" and last year's "BH90210" variation), also holds appeal for Green. "I've had nothing but great experiences with everybody there," he reflects. "Even when there are new people, it feels like new members of a family that I'm already part of. And they know I'm a part of it, so it's a very good environment."

In Focus

WandaVision: Season 1 (Disney+ — series premiere, Jan. 15, 2021)

Marvel Cinematic Universe's Wanda Maximoff and The Vision are at the center of this original action series, which catches up with the characters (played by Elizabeth Olsen and Paul Bettany) as they're living in idealized lives in suburbia but suspecting all may not be what it seems. Kat Dennings, Kathryn Hahn, Randall Park and Teyonah Parris are also in the solid cast

"Snowpiercer: Season 2" (TNT - season premiere, Jan. 25, 2021)

Season 1 of this action thriller ended with the survivors of the revolution trying to pick up the pieces and maintain a fragile peace among the now-blended classes as they braced for an attack by Mr. Wilford (Sean Bean). Season 2 brings an entirely new power struggle to the fore, causing a rift between those loval to Layton (Dayeed Diggs) and those ready to follow Wilford, who has a new train loaded with new technology. Elsewhere, Melanie (Jennifer Connelly) leads the charge on a shocking new discovery.

"HONEST THIEF"

Liam Neeson's movies typically are highprofile, but this one got considerably less play than usual, if only because fewer theaters were available because of the coronavirus pandemic. The frequent action star plays the Boston-based thief of the title, whose new romance prompts him to give up his profession and try to cut a deal with the FBI. However, the agents sent to make contact with him (Jai Courtney, Anthony Ramos) turn out to be corrupt, sending him on the lam; after learning of his past, his girlfriend (Kate Walsh, "Private Practice") tries to help him out of his bind. Jeffrey Donovan ("Burn Notice") and Robert Patrick ("Scorpion") also star. ★★★ (PG-13: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"THE LAST SHIFT"

An Oscar nominee and an Emmy winner, the excellent Richard Jenkins ("The Visitor," "The Shape of Water") gets top billing in this comedydrama about a longtime fast-food-restaurant worker who decides to call it a career after the better part of four decades. The assignment to train his replacement (Shane Paul McGhie) has surprising results for the man, who has a strong reaction to his struggling-writer trainee's political views. Allison Tolman ("Fargo") and Ed O'Neill

("Modern Family") also are in the cast, but writer-director Anderw Cohn clearly designed this primarily as a well-deserved showcase for Jenkins. ★★★ (R: AS, P) (Also on Blu-ray and On Demand)

"KENNY ROGERS: THE GAMBLER'S LAST DEAL"

Though some music stars give their last performances without knowing they'll be those, late pop and country icon Rogers planned when his deal would be done. to paraphrase one of his most popular songs. Long a staple of the concert circuit, he conducted his farewell tour from 2015 to 2017 - and anyone familiar with any aspect of his career had to be satisfied, since the content stretched back to his early days with the group The First Edition to the legendary hits he'd have later as a solo artist. Demonstrating the ease with which he related to an audience (and that helped him maintain such popularity for so long), the principal show featured here was recorded at the London Palladium, though segments from other stops on the itinerary also are shown. The package also includes a CD of tunes as performed in the concert. *** (Not rated)

"ZOMBIE BRO"

Loyalty between siblings is a commendable thing ... but if your brother is a zombie, all bets might be off. Such is the case in this horror tale, which is aimed toward a youthful audience, believe it or not. In her one screen credit to date, Lauren Grego plays a young woman who makes the unfortunate discovery that someone very close to her (Cooper Flynn) is among the undead. She then has to warn her parents not only to beware of their son, but also to get ready for a battle meant to result in his elimination. Karina Bracken and Claudia Pickering also appear. ★★ (Not rated: AS, P, V) (Also on On Demand)

"THE LAST WARRIORS"

Maybe because it's the last week of the year, the word "last" is getting a big workout in new home-video titles, and here's another example. A staple of romantic cable movies, Corey Sevier ("A Star for Christmas," "Mr. Write") gets to flex his muscles in a different way - quite literally - as a hunter whose skills provide nourishment for a band of postapocalyptic survivors. Expectedly in a tale like this, enemies are on their trail, so the hero has a lot of responsibility that only increases as the saga unfolds. Roseanne Supernault, Nathaniel Arcand and Michelle Thrush also are in the cast of the film, originally released in 2016 under the title "The Northlander." *** (Not rated: AS, P, V) (Also on Blu-ray)

Titans' Henry bulldozes opposing secondaries

In the mold of a John Riggins, Jim Brown or Marion Motley, Derrick Henry is the type of big back that defensive backs hate to see coming.

Indeed, in their fifth-year running back, the Tennessee Titans have the type of runner whose speed (4.54 seconds in the 40), size (6 feet 3 inches, 247 pounds) and ability to cut on a dime make tackling him in the open field an almost impossible task. Not to mention one that could cause bodily harm.

And let's not forget about his signature stiff-arm, an old-school tactic that would-be tacklers have come to fear.

That was demonstrated in the Titans' Week 5 victory over the Buffalo Bills, when Henry's stiff-arm of Josh Norman sent the cornerback backwards through the air and onto his backside as Henry plowed ahead for a five-yard gain. It also got the attention of commentators, fans and just about every cornerback and safety in the league.

The move has even drawn the admiration of LaDainian Tomlinson, one of the game's greatest runners, who is now an analyst for NFL Network.

"They don't want to see him when they're running downhill and he's coming at an angle, when he can throw his stiff-arm," the Pro Football Hall of Famer said. "They're at his mercy."

Through 12 games, Henry was leading the league with 1,317 yards and was on pace for his secondstraight rushing title. He's also a big reason why the Titans are vying for first place in the AFC South with a postseason berth assured.

Henry and the Titans can be seen in action Sunday, Dec. 27, when they pay a visit to Lambeau Field to take on the Green Bay Packers in a game airing on NBC.

Restaurateurs rise to the challenges of the pandemic in Food Network documentary

While no one has gone through the pandemic completely unscathed, it is the restaurant industry that has really taken it on the chin.

Local restrictions placed on seating capacity, indoor dining and business hours have hurt revenue and forced restaurants to close, in some cases permanently. Those that managed to remain open were forced to strategize to save their business and support their employees. Some did takeout and delivery, while others served food to frontline workers and those in need. The changes wrought by this global catastrophe will no doubt reverberate for decades to come.

Some of those challenges are chronicled in the Food Network documentary "Restaurant Hustle 2020: All on the Line." Premiering Sunday, Dec. 27, the two-hour film from executive producer Guy Fieri ("Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives") follows world-class chefs and restaurateurs Maneet Chauhan, Christian Petroni, Marcus Samuelsson and Antonia Lofaso as they became amateur videographers to record some of the extraordinary measures they were forced to take to keep their businesses up and running and their employees employed.

For Lofaso ("Top Chef"), who was forced to close one of her three Los Angeles-area restaurants, that meant a national delivery service.

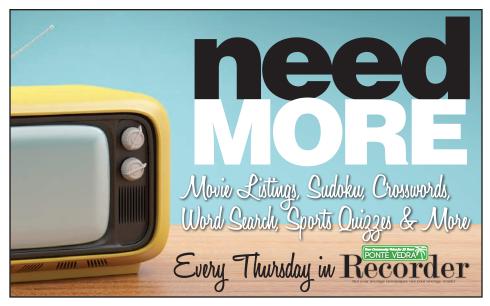

"We've already started to see sales where people want to get empanada kits and rice ball kits and pasta kits in Cleveland, in Kansas, in New York, all over the place," she says. "And so we think that there's actually going to be another opportunity for revenue for this other sort of national delivery business so that I think this time around we'll be able to hopefully employ some of the back-of-the-house employees (who) were basically laid off for three months. ... So depending on how much we get from that could mean the difference of having a whole other restaurant stay open to do these boxes."

Lofaso, who normally doesn't allow cameras into her restaurant operations, became involved in this project because she felt this was a piece of history that future generations could learn from. At this writing, Los Angeles was preparing to go through a second wave of closures and Lofaso was anticipating another round of layoffs. But she's proud of her employees and wanted to show how they responded to adversity.

"The thing about it is," she says, "is that I think all my employees feel confident in what we've done in the way we've been able to keep things afloat that they know that even if it's three weeks, four weeks or eight weeks, whatever this looks like, but if they hang on they have a place to come back to. And so we've set that precedent and so I think they feel a little bit more confident going into this next shutdown with where, 'I know work has taken care of me.' So I just feel proud on so many levels."
