Michael Bolton sings a different tune with 'The Celebrity Dating Game'

If you think Michael Bolton will co-host "The Celebrity Dating Game" without crooning to the contestants, forget it.

The long-popular, Grammy-winning singer-songwriter starts a new chapter by joining "New Girl" alum Zooey Deschanel to host ABC's new take on a classic game show premiering Monday, June 14. The idea is the same, with someone choosing between three contenders ... who won't know the identity of their question-asker unless, or until, they can guess it from musical clues supplied by Bolton. First up to do the picking: former "Bachelorette" Hannah Brown and actress-comedian Nicole Byer.

Also an executive producer of the show, Bolton explains he wants to "connect the dots" between music and other kinds of entertainment now. "That was part of this offer, then the music became front-and-center. And I realized, as I was doing it, that I was accepting an invitation to bring bits and pieces of songs I've loved my whole life – and of a couple that I've written and produced, ones that were hits for me. It was a lot of fun doing it, with a lot of talented people to work with."

Citing Deschanel as one of those people, Bolton is grateful for her participation: "I know she has a beautiful voice and loves music, but in a way, she's doing the heavy lifting here. To stand in front of my own audience is fun and easy, but speaking to an audience that hasn't been holding tickets waiting to see me for six months to a year, it's a matter of keeping them engaged. Zooey is so good and so comfortable with that; She's adorable and she lights up a stage, and it would be so much work for me to introduce the contestants and make it feel like I wasn't reading."

Celebrities have sampled the "Dating Game" premise before, though they weren't necessarily stars at the time. John Ritter, Farrah Fawcett, Ron Howard, Sally Field and (twice) Tom Selleck were on the original 1965-73 ABC version of the show hosted by Jim Lange.

With a catalog of enduring hits ranging from "How Am I Supposed to Live Without You?" to "Love Is a Wonderful Thing," Bolton – who has been working on a new album – is following television-series guest shots ("Two and a Half Men," "Glee") and appearances in commercials with "The Celebrity Dating Game."

"Being backstage for this was one of the first times I've felt comfortable in a year," he attests, having been off the concert circuit because of the coronavirus pandemic. "The most difficult thing about this was forgetting the songs I know (for the show's parody versions). I was unlearning things I've known for 30 or 40

"Impractical Jokers: The Movie" (truTV — movie premiere, July 1)

Chris Henchy directed and co-wrote (with "Jokers" series cast Joe Gatto, James "Murr" Murray, Brian "Q" Quinn and Sal Vulcano) this 2020 faux documentary which purports to be an "origin story" for the comedy quartet. The film reveals how a humiliating high-school mishap in 1992 sends the Impractical Jokers on the road, where they compete in hidden-camera challenges for the chance to turn back the clock and redeem three of the four Jokers. Guest stars include Paula Abdul, Jaden Smith, Joey Fatone and a gentleman billed as "William

THE FIRST FILM FROM DAVID CHASE CREATOR OF THE SOPRANOS

BORN TO PLAY

ROSTON RENEGADES

"Movie: Willy's Wonderland"

Nicolas Cage ("Mandy") stars in this 2021 action comedy as a loner tricked into doing janitorial work at a condemned family fun park where the animatronic mascots are possessed by a demonic entity. Emily Tosta, Beth Grant and Ric Reitz are also in the cast for director Kevin Lewis ("Malibu Spring Break," "Dark Heart").

"Movie: Not Fade Away"

David Chase ("The Sopranos") helmed this 2012 drama of 1960s New Jersey friends who form a rock band. The soundtrack — overseen by Steven Van Zandt, a "Sopranos" actor for Chase and (of course) a veteran of Bruce Springsteen's E Street Band — encompasses tunes by everyone from Bob Dylan to the Rolling Stones. The cast consists largely of relative unknowns including John Magaro.

"Born To Play"

From ESPN and director Viridiana Lieberman ("Fattitude") comes this 2020 feature length documentary that follows the athletes of the Boston Renegades women's tackle football team as these unpaid players put their bodies on the line to pursue the championship that had eluded them the year before.

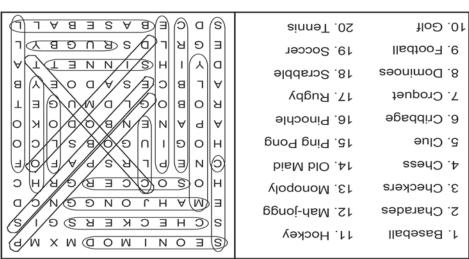

"Movie: Her Name Is Chef"

Pete Ferriero ("The Price of Fame") directed this 2021 documentary that shines the spotlight on six accomplished women of the kitchen and how they broke down doors to earn the title of Chef — Elizabeth Falkner, Fatima Ali, Hillary Sterling, Esther Choi, Juliet Masters and Caroline Schiff. Host Leia Gaccione conducts the interviews. (ORIGINAL)

"Backyard Bar Wars" (truTV — series premiere, July 8)

Comic and host Chris Distefano keeps the laughs coming in this chuckle-filled new reality competition series, a send-up of more pok-er-faced shows, with Distefano "roasting" the efforts of the neighbor-builders as they compete to see which of them can create the most dazzling at-home bar on their block. While the jokes are plentiful, though, the bars themselves are nothing to laugh at, and the final reveals are often jaw-dropping.

Jon Rahm ready to tackle Torrey Pines in 2021 U.S. Open

If you're looking for a favorite in the 2021 U.S. Open, we present for your consideration Jon Rahm.

Indeed, the 26-year-old Spaniard is a monster at Torrey Pines, the San Diego municipal course where the golf year's third major is being played, and he's ready to get back to it this year.

He first played there as a rookie in the 2017 Farmers Insurance Open, where he won in dramatic fashion with an impressive 60-foot eagle putt on the 72nd hole. After a 29thplace tie flameout the following year, he returned to posting solid finishes at the Farmers, coming in tied for fifth in 2019, second in 2020 and tied for seventh this year.

As for why he plays well on the South Course, he points to its 7,698-yard length.

"(It) is pretty much a ball-striker's course and that's probably why Tiger's always played really well there ...," he said. "You can take it deep and just never get too far out of position."

He's also playing reasonably well this season, as of late May sitting ninth on the PGA Tour money list with more than $3.8 million in winnings and 12th in the FedEx Cup standings. His best 2021 finishes at this writing are a tie for second at the ZOZO Championship and ties for fifth at both the Masters and the WGC-Dell Technologies Match Play Championship.

He'll be taking aim once again at Torrey Pines when it hosts the 2021 U.S. Open Thursday through Sunday, June 17-20, airing on Golf Channel and NBC.

Meet the next generation of chefs on 'Battle of the Brothers'

Once up-and-coming chefs themselves, Bryan and Michael Voltaggio know what it's like to make their way in the culinary world. So they'd like to make that journey easier for the generation behind them, as they demonstrate in a competition series coming to discovery+.

In "Battle of the Brothers," which begins streaming Thursday, June 17, the Los Angeles-area siblings and restaurateurs serve as mentors for eight of the country's most promising chefs in a culinary competition designed to test their skills and techniques through three rounds of challenges. The winner at the end of the six episodes – as determined by a panel of rotating judges including Jordan Andino, Alex Guarnaschelli, Christian Petroni, Cliff Crooks and Jeremiah Lawrence Stone - gets a guestchef takeover at one of the Voltaggios' restaurants to present their own vision and get their name out into the foodie world.

It's a concept both brothers have been longing to undertake for quite some time.

"In our kitchens, this is what we're trying to do every day, is foster new talent," Bryan Voltaggio explains. "And so (the show) presented the opportunity to do this – and especially during the year that we all just had, to give people an opportunity to emerge and become a chef in their own right. ...

"So Michael and I have been in this industry for a combined 50 years," he adds with a laugh. "We've both been cooking for a very long time. So it's time for us to transition into this role, so there wasn't a better time than now."

The contestants here were all hand-picked by the Voltaggios for their potential to break out and take the next step, be they private chefs, line cooks or sous chefs. And their skills and fundamentals, naturally, are all first-rate. But of course, under the pressure of competition and time constraints and with the presence of TV cameras and lights, they can lose their focus, which is where a mentor's counsel proves critical.

"A lot of times it's just, 'Hey, tell me why. Tell me why you're doing that,' "Bryan Voltaggio says. "Because a lot of times, even just asking that simple question makes them rethink the whole reason why they might be approaching an ingredient a certain way, like, 'Why are you braising this now? Tell me what you're going for here.' And just having that out-loud conversation sometimes either makes a chef think twice about what they're doing or helps them complete their thought.

"And I think that not always are we questioning them thinking it's a bad idea," he continues, "but sometimes it's just maybe steering them in another direction. ... Just making sure that they're going to get their food to the plate."
