Laura Osnes helps mark 'A Capitol Fourth' again on PBS

As familiar as she is with singing in "A Capitol Fourth," Laura Osnes knows that this year's event will be different.

Twice a veteran of the holiday concert, the Broadway star makes it three times by appearing again in the PBS special's 41st annual edition Sunday, July 4 (check local listings). As with last year's show, the traditional gathering on the West Lawn of the U.S. Capitol is out because of the coronavirus pandemic – but other locations in and around Washington, D.C., are being used for pre-taped performances introduced by returning host Vanessa Williams.

"There's a segment honoring the Gershwin brothers, so I'll be doing a very famous song of theirs with The Rickey Minor Band," the lively and pleasant Osnes reports, "and I'll be outside on the rooftop of a famous building. This time has caused a lot of people to think outside the box and get creative with content."

Also on the scheduled talent roster for "A Capitol Fourth 2021" are music icons Jimmy Buffett and Gladys Knight, opera legend Renee Fleming, Tony Award winners Cynhtia Erivo and Ali Stroker, actress-singer Auli'i Cravalho, the music groups Pentatonix and Train, and country stars Alan Jackson, Mickey Guyton, Jennifer Nettles and Jimmie Allen. Jack Everly will conduct the National Symphony Orchestra.

Osnes admits that she misses not being together with the other cast members, "that camaraderie and community, but the content gets to be really rehearsed and shot one or two times, so you can get it perfect. That's like my also doing the Kennedy Center Honors recently; we got to use the roof of the Center for it, and we've never been in that space before. I'm excited to showcase the city of Washington and not just the Capitol.

"I relish any opportunity to honor our country," adds Osnes, who also reflected patriotic themes in "A Homecoming for the Holidays" ... one of the several Hallmark Channel movies she has starred in. "This was an easy 'yes' for me," she says of accepting the request to return to "A Capitol Fourth."

Osnes notes she feels "very, very grateful" for the professional activities she's had when much of the entertainment industry has been closed or substantially scaled back – including Broadway, where venues that cater to live performances are slated to reopen in September.

"I don't have a show that I'm jumping back into, but I'm very excited for my friends," says Osnes, who has starred in such New York productions as "Grease," "South Pacific" and "Bandstand," and will tour this fall with a newly rebranded "Disney Princesses" show that she co-created. "I'm glad that theaters will again bring joy to people, as well as the much-needed artistic outlet that everybody has been craving."

"Olympic Dreams Featuring Jonas Brothers" (NBC — new special, July 21)
The Jonas Brothers pursue their Olympic

The Jonas Brothers pursue their Olympic fantasy in this new one-hour special. Growing up in Wyckoff, N.J., Joe, Kevin and Nick Jonas were avid fans of the Olympic Games and, even as young boys, started fantasizing about competing at that lofty level with other world athletes. Their music careers forced those dreams off the front burner, but now, after more than a decade as pop superstars, the brothers get a chance to prove their mettle, as they are trained by some of Team USA's best athletes.

"Movie: Nasrin"

Jeff Kaufman ("Every Act of Life") wrote, produced and directed this 2020 documentary that offers an immersive portrait of Iranian human rights activist and political prisoner Nasrin Sotoudeh and takes an indepth look at that nation's remarkably resilient women's rights movement. Academy Award winner Olivia Colman ("The Favourite") is the narrator.

"Movie: Summer of Soul" First-time filmmaker Ahmir "Questlove" Thompson helmed this documentary that looks back to the summer of 1969 and the Harlem Cultural Festival, featuring concert performances by Nina Simone, B.B. King, Mahalia Jackson, Sly & the Family Stone, the Fifth Dimension, Stevie Wonder, Gladys Knight & the Pips and others in rare footage. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: The Outside Story"

An introverted editor self-exiled to his second flood apartment is forced to get out into the world when he accidentally locks himself out in this 2020 drama from first-time feature filmmaker Casimir Nozkowski. Brian Tyree Henry ("This Is Us"), Sonequa Martin-Green ("Star Trek: Discovery"), Sunita Mani ("GLOW") and Olivia Edward ("Better Things") head the cast.

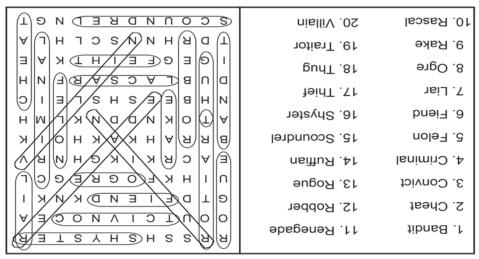

"Movie: The Obituary of Tunde Johnson"

A gay Nigerian-American teen pulled over and shot to death by police is caught in a time loop that forces him to relive the same day over and over and forces him to confront uncomfortable truths about his life and himself in this 2019 drama from director Ali LeRoi ("Everybody Hates Chris"). Steven Silver, Spencer Neville and Nicola Peltz head the cast.

Chestnut goes for 14th title in Nathan's Famous Hot Dog Eating Contest

Like any sport, competitive eating requires training.

For hot dog eating champ Joey Chestnut, it's about practice and recovery. For two days he eats as much salad and greens as he can, then he fasts for two days, consuming only lots of liquid. He also does plenty of cardio workouts. Then he keeps repeating the cycle until he's stretched out and ready for a real competition.

Probably his biggest of the year comes Sunday, July 4, when he goes for his 14th title and sixth in succession in the 2021 Nathan's Famous Hot Dog Eating Contest, airing on ESPN from Coney Island in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Chestnut has won this contest every year since 2007, save for 2015 when he was upset by Matt Stonie. Last year, the Northern California native came out of the gate on fire, averaging 10 hots dogs and buns (HDBs) per minute at the outset before moderating his pace. In his sights was his previous record of 74 HDBs that he set in 2018. And that came right down to the final seconds, when he consumed his 75th to take his 13th title.

Chestnut calls the Nathan's contest his hardest of the year as it is a test of not only internal capacity but jaw strength. He says other competitions like ice cream sandwiches, chicken wings and corned beef sandwiches do not push him the way this one does. And when this one is over, he'll be back to eating salads and fasting and getting ready for his next competition.

Such is the life of a competitive eater.

Bravo's 'Top Chef Amateurs' celebrates the home cook

2020 was arguably the year of the home cook, as the pandemic forced the closure of restaurants and made people cook for themselves in order to survive. And it those folks "Top Chef Amateurs" intends to salute.

Airing Thursdays on Bravo, the half-hour series brings in home cooks to vie in head-to-head competition, taking on the most iconic challenges from "Top Chef" history such as the mis-en-place race, the blind taste test and the dreaded risotto challenge, assisted by past "Top Chef" finalists, frontrunners or fan favorites. The winner of each episode, as determined by a rotating panel of judges, takes home a $5,000 prize.

Unlike the original series, these contestants have no professional experience and work in day jobs like teacher, architect and CIA agent, which made for a more relaxed atmosphere that series host Gail Simmons says was a nice departure from the uber-competitiveness of "Top Chef."

"Because they weren't just professional cooks, they all were so multidimensional in their abilities and in their backgrounds," she says. "Incredibly diverse and they're just people that I would otherwise never get a chance to meet, and they made an impact on me. ... You think about what their lives had been like specifically in this year, and that they were willing to drop it all, leave their families, quarantine for days on end just to spend a day with us, that felt really special. And I really loved the chance to talk with them and meet them and taste their food. It was the personal connection."

But this being a "Top Chef" show, there is still pressure. None of the contestants here have ever cooked competitively and thus felt the pressures of lights, TV cameras, the clock and competition, just like the pros. Efforts were made to mitigate that by adding a certain amount of levity to the challenges as well as the support of the alumni chefs, who acted as sous chefs for the competitors.

"They couldn't be the person who cooked the main ingredient," Simmons notes, "but they could walk them through, hold their hand and that was huge, I think, for them and really exciting because these are all people that they know and love and feel confident in their skills and ability. And we also laughed with them. You know, there were a lot of really emotional moments where we just allowed them to be them. And we didn't try to intimidate them. We gave them an abbreviated version of 'Judges' Table' but it was all with a wink and a smile.

"And there's no losers," she continues.
"There's a winner and even the person who didn't win gets a great big hug at the end.
And in a year where there were so few hugs in the world and we had all been through the wringer and it was a safe space, that was like a really wonderful moment for everybody."

"Movie: An American Werewolf in London"

A successful mix of horror and comedy, director John Landis' 1981 scream-andlaugh fest benefits from a skewed sense of humor. David Naughton and Griffin Dunne play American tourists attacked one foggy English night by a vicious beast. While his friend is killed, only to keep popping up in states of increasing physical deterioration, Naughton's character morphs into a werewolf when the moon is full.

In Focus

"Kevin Garnett: Anything Is Possible" (Showtime — documentary premiere, July

This new Showtime Sports documentary chronicles the remarkable career of a recently retired NBA superstar who is widely regarded as one of the greatest power forwards of all time. The film examines how Garnett's decision to become the first player in two decades to go to the NBA directly out of high school changed the face of the sport, ushering in a phenome-non that reverberated beyond basketball and coinciding with several socially progressive changes. Interviews include Snoop Dogg and former Boston Celtics coach Doc Rivers,

What's Available NOW On

"Black Widow" (July 9)

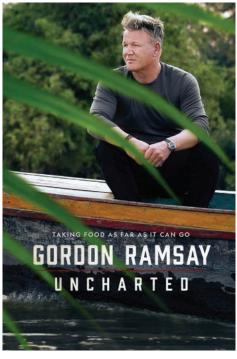

From Marvel Studios comes this feature-length actioner that follows the adventures of Natasha Romanoff (Scarlett Johansson) aka Black Widow between the films "Civil War" and "Infinity War." Florence Pugh, David Harbour, Rachel Weisz and William Hurt are also in the talented cast for director Cate Shortland ("Somersault," "Berlin Syndrome"). (ORIGINAL)

"Monsters at Work" (July 7)

From Disney Television Animation comes this series that blends new characters with those from the "Monsters, Inc." movie franchise, as they cope with change in their company wrought by its discovery that children's laughter generates much more power than screams of fright. John Goodman, Billy Crystal, Ben Feldman and Mindy Kaling are in the voice cast. (ORIGINAL)

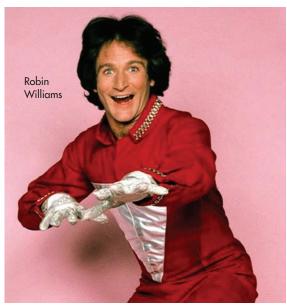

"Gordon Ramsay: Uncharted" (Available now)

Season 3 of this National Geographic adventure/culinary series sends Chef Ramsay to Texas to hunt feral hog and catch and cook rattlesnake; Portugal, to brave pounding surf to harvest delicious barnacles; Maine, to learn how lobstering is done from a pair of tough lobsterwomen; and Croatia, to find ingredients that rival the best of Italy in world-class quality.

"Heartland Docs DVM: Season 3" (Available now)

Horses in need of dental care, a dog that stops breathing during routine surgery, a turtle with a broken shell and a cow sporting a fifth leg are among the cases bedeviling husbandand-wife Nebraska veterinarians Ben and Erin Schroeder in the third season of this unscripted Nat Geo Wild series.

Remembering Robin

Questions:

1) Robin Williams made his network series debut not in "Mork & Mindy," but as a regular on a 1977 NBC variety series starring what iconic Black comic?

2) "Mork & Mindy" was set in what midsize Western city?

3) What was the name of Mork's home planet, and to whom did he have to send back regular reports?

4) On what ABC sitcom did the character of Mork first appear?

5) After Williams became a hit on "Mork & Mindy," in 1979 NBC reran a previously low-rated series of comedy specials featuring Williams. They were an ill-advised attempt to recapture the zaniness of what signature '60s ensemble comedy smash? 6) Williams often cited this frequent guest star on "The Jack Paar Show" as being one of his inspirations to become an improvisational comic. Can you name him?

7) Williams co-starred with Teri Garr in the title role of which entry in "Shelley Duvall's Faerie Tale Theatre"?

8) What was the urgent advice of Williams' professor character to his students in the movie hit "Dead Poets Society"?

9) Williams won an Oscar for playing another professor in what 1997 box-office hit?

> 1) Richard Pryor
