'CSI: Vegas' gives a long-popular crime drama new life

If a new series has you thinking it's 2000 again instead of 2021, you can be forgiven.

When creator and executive producer Anthony E. Zuiker's Las Vegas-set "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation" launched 21 years ago, it quickly became a bigger hit than many anticipated ... establishing a long-running franchise that also came to encompass the spinoffs "CSI: Miami," "CSI: NY" and "CSI: Cyber." Now, what's old truly is new again as CBS revisits the initial location and welcomes back some of the original cast members with the premiere of "CSI: Vegas" Wednesday, Oct. 6.

A sequel to the first show, the latest iteration reunites William Petersen (also an executive producer again) and Jorja Fox as romantically linked – in fact, formerly married – forensic detectives Gil Grissom and Sara Sidle. Other returnees who'll be familiar to the "CSI" faithful include Wallace Langham as David Hodges and (in multiple episodes) Paul Guilfoyle as Jim Brass. Paula Newsome also stars as the crime lab's current leader, and Matt Lauria, Mel Rodriguez ("The Last Man on Earth") and Mandeep Dhillon are among additional cast newcomers.

"I think that between Las Vegas, 'Miami,' New York' and 'Cyber,' we did hit a sort of audience exhaustion," Zuiker allows. "It was always in the back of our minds that this would probably come back, because 'CSI' was such an iconic show and it was mystery-based, it would make perfect sense at some point. I believe we made the crime genre white-hot, and it's still pretty hot to this day, and I think the timing is interesting because the world has changed."

Indeed, then-cutting-edge forensic techniques were a big part of "CSI's" appeal ... and they still appeal to Petersen, who's an executive producer as well as a star of the new show, as he was the first time. "I sort of jumped at it," he says, "because of the idea of revisiting Grissom and Sara, to see who we are now. Plus, it"s a different world than it was 20 years ago. The idea of being able to come back into the land of science, I thought, was really a great opportunity."

While allowing that "we had to diversify the cast, based on the times," Zuiker feels "CSI: Vegas" has a strong suit in presenting principal actors from the original run again.

"It wasn't that difficult" to get them back, he maintains. "It was really just sitting down with Billy (Petersen) first at a diner in downtown Los Angeles, much like when we sat down at a cafe in 1999. I expected much more of a struggle, but I think he saw enough familiar faces who had been around from Day One to say 'Yes.'"

DISCOVER FLORIDA'S FIRST LIGHTHOUSE

In 1980, St. Johns County Commissioners debated demolishing the burned-out keepers' house as a public safety hazard. Members of the Junior Service League of St. Augustine founded the Lighthouse Museum of St. Augustine as a community service project, leading a grass-roots effort to save the burned-out keepers' house.

The result of the League's determination is today's St. Augustine Lighthouse & Maritime Museum, Inc., which secured federal 501(c)(3) status as a charitable non-profit Florida corporation.

Stafford eyes a Super Bowl title in Los Angeles

Matthew Stafford has played a lot of games and set a lot of records for the Detroit Lions. And after 12 seasons of mostly losing football in the Motor City, the 33-year-old quarterback wants what every NFL player wants: a Super Bowl ring.

This past offseason, he requested and got a trade, to the Los Angeles Rams for two future first round picks, a third round pick in the most recent draft and quarterback Jared Goff. It was a steep price to pay for the Rams, who took a first round exit in the 2020 Divisional playoff, but it might also be the final piece of what could be a championship team.

The Rams and their fans certainly got a taste of that in their Week 1 game against the Chicago Bears, when Stafford completed 20 of 26 passes for 321 yards with three touchdowns and no interceptions in a 34-14 victory over his former NFC North rivals. The uber-efficient performance also drew raves from teammates and head coach Sean McVay, who commented afterward, "You're not limited in anything you can do in the pass game."

Stafford brings an impressive resume to L.A., holding Lions all-time records for passing yards (45,109), touchdowns (282), completions (3,898) and wins (74). Given the talent that now surrounds him, Stafford and the Rams hope his move west will bring more milestones to what may be a Hall of Fame career.

Stafford and the Rams can be seen in action Thursday, Oct. 7, when they pay a visit to the NFC West rival Seattle Seahawks in a prime-time game airing on Fox.

It's the trained vs. the self-taught in Hulu's 'Baker's Dozen'

Is it better to be trained formally or in the school of hard knocks? That's a question to be worked out in a new baking competition series coming to Hulu.

"Baker's Dozen," which begins streaming Thursday, Oct. 7, pits 13 bakers who are formally trained pros, self-taught pros or self-taught home bakers in a competition to see who can create the most elaborate and impressive desserts. Over the course of three rounds, their confections will be judged on the basis of creativity, execution, presentation and taste, with the winner of each episode receiving a $5,000 grand prize and the coveted golden rolling pin.

Hosting the series are Tamera Mowry-Housley ("The Real") and cookbook author, restaurateur and former White House pastry chef Bill Yosses, who thinks that the series will strike a chord among a surprisingly wide swath of viewers.

"It seemed just right after quarantine (that) many people took up like new hobbies or new activities, something to keep them busy," he says, "and apparently a lot of people took up baking. So there were these great home cooks, basically home bakers, who had accomplished so many great things and so they are part of the mix as are some professionals who have branched out into new areas. And so that was, I think, one of the main things that interested me."

And the contestants are put to the test in a number of areas. For instance, in the opener they're challenged to decorate cake pops, then make 13 exactly uniform pastries followed by a hybrid of two different desserts. Like any competition series, pressure comes into play as TV cameras bear down and the clock ticks away. All appear to handle it well.

But what pleased Yosses most was the camaraderie of the contestants, who seemed to be genuinely rooting for one another, even after they were eliminated.

"Even though they're competing, they were sympathetic to one another," he says. "I thought that was really cool. I don't know if that's a generational thing because most of the contestants were pretty young. But they sort of encouraged each other and there was a little bit of like, I don't know, comical trash-talking. But you could see that they were enjoying it and they kind of bonded over this shared experience and so I really enjoyed seeing that."
