Hulu's 'Dopesick' offers a 360-degree view of the opioid crisis

A talented cast and multiple perspectives help tell the story of the beginning of the opioid epidemic in a miniseries upcoming on Hulu.

In "Dopesick," an eight-episode series based on the bestselling book by Beth Macy that premieres Wednesday, Oct. 13, the story of the emergence of Oxycontin and the subsequent death, suffering and mayhem it caused is seen through the experiences of a well-meaning rural Virginia doctor (Michael Keaton) who prescribed it for an injured coal miner (Kaitlyn Dever); the chairman (Michael Stuhlbarg) of the pharmaceutical company that sees the drug as its financial salvation; the sales reps (Will Poulter, Philippa Soo) pitching the drug to doctors and hospitals; and the Department of Justice officials (Peter Sarsgaard, John Hoogenakker) and DEA agent (Rosario Dawson) investigating what went down.

At the heart of it, of course, is Oxycontin. It's an opioid and thus very addictive but the company's time-release formula was supposed to mitigate those qualities, making it the new miracle drug for sufferers of chronic pain. But like any narcotic, users develop a tolerance over time and require increasing dosages. Soon pharmacies are being robbed, lives are wrecked and people are dying. And the drug company is running for cover.

Meanwhile, an epidemic has taken hold, a familiar story that still plays out today.

"4400" (The CW — series premiere, Oct. 25)

A reboot of a sci-fi cable series that ran from 2004-07 on USA Network, this new CW makeover once again deals with the mysterious and collective reappearance of 4400 seemingly random people who vanished inexplicably over the last century. What makes their mass return to the city of Detroit even more baffling is how none of them seems to have aged a day since their disappearance, sending government experts racing for answers. The cast includes Brittany Adebumola, Joseph David-Jones, Ireon Roach and Jaye Ladymore.

"The ease with which it became epidemic kind of knocked me out," says Keaton, also an executive producer on the series. "It seemed almost too simple that this happened this way. ... To be honest, I'm reading (the script) and thinking, well, are we really – is this too on the head? And then you, after you read Beth Macy's book and you start to do any kind of research, then you realize this is not exaggerated in the slightest. But that's the expression, that's the thing for me, the ease with which all this happened was sickening."

The story demands attention as there is a lot here to digest. It jumps around in multiple timelines and does considerable character exposition. Pulling it all together was an enormous task but executive producer Danny Strong felt that to do it any other way wouldn't do the story justice.

"I really wanted to do something that felt like it was telling the totality of the story because I felt as if one story wasn't the full story ...," Strong explains. "My main goal was to expose what happened, the crimes that were committed ... and then to dramatize, in real-time, their victims. I thought by going back and forth between the people that are suffering (and) the people that are making these decisions, that feel like even petty decisions that they're making, could really shine a (light) on what they did and could also give a sense of empathy and understanding (for) people that are suffering from addiction."

THE LONELIEST WHALE

"Movie: Madonna and the Breakfast Club"

Guy Guido ("Lovin' Brooklyn," "Physical Attraction") wrote and directed this 2019 documentary that hearkens back to the time when Madonna was a struggling New York City singer with the Breakfast Club, her first band, in the days before she landed her first solo record deal.

"Movie: The Loneliest Whale: The Search for 52"

Joshua Zeman ("Cropsey," "Killer Legends") co-wrote, directed and appears in this 2021 documentary that follows the search for the forgotten "52 Hertz Whale," so nicknamed because its calls at 52 hertz are at a frequency unrecognized by other whales and thus it is believed it lived its life in solitude.

"Dopesick"

Danny Strong and Barry Levinson are among the creative forces behind this eight-part dramatic miniseries that takes a 360-degree view as it explores the beginning of the opioid crisis through the perspectives of a doctor, patients, pharmaceutical executives and sales reps and law enforcement. Michael Keaton, Rosario Dawson, Peter Sarsgaard, Kaitlyn Dever and Will Poulter head the cast. (ORIGINAL)

Where it all began...

To understand the significance of Menorcan's at the St. Augustine Lighthouse, we must recognize their role in its history. Many lightkeepers were of Menorcan descent, including Juan Andreu, the first lighthouse keeper in the newly lit St. Augustine Lighthouse, Juan Carrera, Joseph Andreu, Maria Andreu, and Siladonio Pellicer. These individuals, whose ancestors traveled to New Smyrna to work as indentured servants, were instrumental in the rise of Menorcan culture in St. Augustine.

Perhaps the most notable of Menorcan Lighthouse Keepers was Maria de los Delores Menstre Andreu, a woman of many firsts. After her husband Juan's tragic passing. Maria became the first female lighthouse keeper and Hispanic-American woman to serve in the United States Coast Guard and command a federal shore Installation, setting a precedent for Hispanic American women serving in the military. For over 150 years, Maria Andreu's trailblazing "experience has inspired generations of women to serve their country.

playerprofile BY GEORGE DICKIE QB Jones shows Pats, AFC East he's no green rookie

It took only a year and a failed Cam Newton experiment for the New England Patriots to find their franchise quarterback in the post-Brady era. Welcome to the NFL, Mac Jones.

Indeed, in its 2021 first round pick, the Pats get a rookie and a maturity that seems to belie his 23 years and miniscule

NFL experience while showing the rest of the AFC East that performance was marked by short passes but no mistakes and no interceptions - the type of football Jets head coach Robert Saleh called with a note of admiration "boring." The type of football he wished his own rookie field general Zach Wilson force the opponent to make them and make them pay for it.

Perhaps, the New England dynasty started with Tom Brady

Jones and the Patriots can be seen in action Sunday, Oct. 10, when they drop in on the Houston Texans in a regional under center hasn't run its course just yet.

And that's been a hallmark of Belichick-era Patriots football neither he nor New England are to be taken lightly. That was evident in Week 2 against the New York Jets, when Jones completed 22 of 30 passes for 186 yards in the Pats' 25-6 domination of their division rivals. The Eating along the Texas/Mexico border on 'La Frontera With Pati Jinich'

The sights, sounds, tastes and cultures along the Texas/Mexico border are on display in all their glory in a two-part documentary upcoming on PBS.

In "La Frontera With Pati Jinich," airing consecutive Fridays beginning Oct. 15 (check local listings), the Mexican-American chef, food writer, educator and cookbook author travels along the international border from El Paso to the Gulf of Mexico to see how the worlds and cultures of towns and cities on both sides meld despite being divided by a political boundary. Along the way, she meets with musicians, artists, athletes, local legends and chefs whose work represents the blending of Mexican, American and other cultures.

Jinich, a Mexico City native who now lives in the U.S., spent two weeks filming along La Frontera and was blown away by how separate and distinct these communities were from even their own countries.

"It's these communities that feel like they don't belong to the U.S. and they don't belong to Mexico but at the same time they belong to something greater because they are contributing to both and even more at the same time," she explains. "But for some reason, for Mexico the people from La Frontera are the people that left or the people that are away, and for America it's the people that are in La Frontera.

"So it is this universe that at the same time it feels like it is isolated, separated, but at the same time it's a universe that is doubly blessed because it lives with a continuous access to both cultures, both worlds, both sets of rules. So it's truly fascinating."

And that access to two cultures, Jinish explains, is evident in TexMex food, which is a blend of cuisines from both sides of the border.

"When I first moved to the U.S., I used to think, what is TexMex?" she says. "Is it trying to be Mexican, but it's something different? I realized that Mexican food really has no borders. Mexican food in the U.S. is incredibly delicious, authentic and its own beast. It is regional Mexican food that has adapted to another country, another region, other tastes. You see Mexican communities all over the U.S. that are adapting in the toolkit that they bring from home and enriching it with what they find in America."
