Jon Seda discovers a world beneath Los Angeles in 'La Brea'

After "Chicago P.D." and "Homicide: Life on the Street," Jon Seda didn't expect his career to go into a sinkhole.

That's not even a figure of speech: His character is among those who fall in when a sizable chunk of Los Angeles literally opens up in "La Brea," a NBC adventure-drama series premiering Monday, Sept. 27. Those who are forced to take the plunge find themselves in primeval surroundings, while others who have remained above ground try to determine what happened and how to reunite with those they apparently have lost.

Natalie Zea ("Justified"), Eoin Macken ("The Night Shift"), Zyra Gorecki and Jack Martin play members of a family separated by the phenomenon, while Seda portrays an ex-Navy SEAL turned thoracic surgeon who's thrust into the land beneath L.A. "I've been really fortunate in my career to play different types of characters," the pleasant Seda reflects, "so when this opportunity came up, I knew it really was something different.

"I hadn't been thinking about doing something like this, but it was something I could enjoy wholeheartedly. To me, it's the epitome of a Hollywood project ... almost like watching a 'Star Wars' movie that takes you away on an adventure. I thought, 'Wow! I definitely have to grab onto this.' I lived in L.A. for about four years, but I was more worried about earthquakes. I never really thought about sinkholes."

One of the ironies of "La Brea" is that while its setting is very American, it's actually being filmed in Australia. Seda has worked there before – when he made HBO's 2010 limited series "The Pacific" – and he says, "The landscape is amazing. It adds so much, especially since with 'La Brea,' you have the sinkhole and this crazy world that we find ourselves in. A lot of the same crew members worked on 'The Pacific,' so we've been doing a lot of reminiscing."

Still, working in Australia means a long separation for Seda (who terms himself "an East Coast kind of guy") from his U.S.-based family, underscored by the quarantining that's required for international travel now.

"That's the tough part," Seda allows.
"The pilot was filmed in Vancouver, and I thought even that was a stretch (distancewise). Then the pandemic happened and delayed things for a while, and when this came back around and it was moving from Vancouver to Australia, I had to talk with my wife about it. We're a really close family and we went over it, with the possibility that we might not see each other for six months. Our kids are older now, so we decided, 'We'll handle it. We'll make it work.' It's been tough, but we all make sacrifices.

DISCOVER FLORIDA'S FIRST LIGHTHOUSE

In 1980, St. Johns County Commissioners debated demolishing the burned-out keepers' house as a public safety hazard. Members of the Junior Service League of St. Augustine founded the Lighthouse Museum of St. Augustine as a community service project, leading a grass-roots effort to save the burned-out keepers' house.

The result of the League's determination is today's St. Augustine Lighthouse & Maritime Museum, Inc., which secured federal 501(c)(3) status as a charitable non-profit Florida corporation.

Power hopes to finish season on a high at Long Beach

IndyCar ends its 2021 season in style this week, going out with a fan favorite and North America's longest-running street race in the Acura Grand Prix of Long Beach.

If history is a guide, Will Power should be a threat on the iconic 1.968-mile, 12-turn temporary street circuit. The 2014 IndyCar Series champ has won here twice, in 2008 and 2012, and gotten on the podium four other times, most recently in 2018 when he finished second. Like many drivers, this is a race he gets up for.

Unfortunately, 2021 has been something of a disappointment for the 40-year-old Australian. Before collecting his first win of the season in the IndyCar Grand Prix on Aug. 14, the year had been a mishmash of mishaps and underperformance. He was nearly dropped from the starting grid for the Indianapolis 500 before qualifying 32nd and finishing 30th. In Detroit, he was leading most of the first race before his car overheated and he wound up 20th. And in Nashville, early contact with Simon Pagenaud caused him to finish 14th.

Were it not for his win in the Indy road course race – which snapped a 13-month drought – Power would be farther down in the IndyCar standings than his current ninth (as of early September). A victory at Long Beach would help salvage his season though the series title is certainly out of reach with leaders Pato O'Ward and Alex Palou ahead of him by more than 100 points.

And it is against them and the likes of Pagenaud, Scott Dixon, Josef Newgarden and Marcus Ericsson that Power will vie in the 2021 Acura Grand Prix of Long Beach, which airs from Southern California Sunday, Sept. 26, on NBC Sports Network.

BY GEORGE DICKIE

When food becomes a character in sitcoms and dramas

It is often said that food is the great common denominator, the common thread that unites us all no matter our beliefs, backgrounds or cultures.

On television, it performs a different function, sometimes as a catalyst for a storyline or as a backdrop against which characters can engage with one another. And nowhere is that more true than on "Blue Bloods."

Premiering its 12th season Friday, Oct. 1, on CBS, the venerable cop drama is known for its lively Sunday family dinner scenes in which patriarch Frank (Tom Selleck) and the Reagan family will discuss morally complex issues over meat loaf, roasted chicken or pot roast or whatever craft services whips up.

And the food is real, though no one in the cast except Donnie Wahlberg (who plays Danny Reagan) actually eats. When it takes all day to shoot the family dinner, it's best to pace oneself.

Conversely, food played an unconventional role in "Seinfeld." Of course, everyone remembers the "Soup Nazi" episode, about an eccentric soupmaker who put his customers through the wringer if they're to get a pint of his extraordinary creations. But there were also junior mints, nonfat yogurt, Mackinaw peaches, a big salad, a loaf of rye, an early bird dinner and a discarded eclair that drove Jerry (Jerry Seinfeld), George (Jason Alexander), Kramer (Michael Richards) and Elaine (Julia Louis-Dreyfus) to distraction – or worse.

On "The Big Bang Theory," Chinese takeout is what's for dinner on Fridays with General Tso's chicken, beef with broccoli, shrimp with lobster sauce and vegetable lo mein being the typical order for Sheldon (Jim Parsons), Leonard (Johnny Galecki), Penny (Kaley Cuoco) and the gang. Much like "Blue Bloods," the comestibles were real here and the cast really dug the steamed dumpling appetizer. Watch closely.

Food was mostly the butt of the joke on "M*A*S*H" with what was served in the mess tent being mostly unrecognizable. But there was the Spam lamb that a kindhearted Radar (Gary Burghoff) used to give a real lamb a stay of execution for a camp cookout and the ribs that Hawkeye (Alan Alda) and Trapper (Wayne Rogers) ordered from Chicago.

While the gang at "Cheers" mostly consumed their meals in liquid form, there was a memorable scene in one Season 5 episode where Thanksgiving dinner at Carla's (Rhea Perlman) house devolved into a food fight with Sam (Ted Danson), Diane (Shelley Long), Frasier (Kelsey Grammer) and the others letting fly with mashed potatoes, stuffing, peas, gravy and cranberry sauce. Fans will also remember this as the only appearance of Norm's (George Wendt) wife Vera, albeit with pumpkin pie obscuring her face.
