Sophia Bush is 'Good Sam' in new CBS medical drama

For Sophia Bush, "Good Sam" is a good reason to get back into series television. The "One Tree Hill" and "Chicago P.D." alum is both the title star and an executive producer of the CBS medical drama premiering Wednesday, Jan. 5. She plays heart surgeon Sam Griffith, who succeeds her no-nonsense father (Jason Isaacs) as their hospital's chief of surgery after a shooting incident leaves him comatose. When he revives several months later and wants his job back, the relatives have intensified conflicts that her mother and his ex-wife (Wendy Crewson) - the site's chief medical officer - tries to mediate.

"Over the last couple of years, it's been really interesting to work more on developing pilots and other content," Bush reflects, "and also, to be honest, to give myself the first break in my adult life from network TV. Really, it was when I had my first meeting with ('Good Sam' creator) Katie Wech about a couple of scripts that she put the bug in my ear about this show ... and as soon as I read the pilot, I knew this was it for me."

Bush maintains she had no qualms about tackling a medical series when there have been, and are, many others: "I realized that the world of a hospital allows us to explore family – whether it's our parents, our partners, our children, our siblings – and it's also about our health. It's a literal container of life-or death experiences, and we show up and we want to help. I think that's why so many of us are drawn to the medical genre.

"One of the things that makes this show so different to me," adds Bush, "is that the heart of it is this generational seesaw between a father and a daughter. There are these Shakespearean moments, yet there's such humor, and I love being able to laugh with a show that can also make me cry. And both (co-stars) Wendy and Jason are so prolific and smart; their chemistry is off the charts."

The new year is starting for Bush after a very eventful 2021: Not only did she begin production on "Good Sam," she got engaged (to entrepreneur Grant Hughes), and she found podcast success by reuniting with "One Tree Hill" colleagues Hilarie Burton Morgan and Bethany Joy Lenz on "Drama Queens." However, she says "Good Sam" occupies a special space for her now.

"The background of COVID-19, and watching what has happened to our health-care workers and our first responders, makes us all feel even more deeply honored to be representing them to the best of our ability on our show," Bush notes. "We're taking their jobs very, very seriously."

DISCOVER FLORIDA'S FIRST LIGHTHOUSE

In 1875, Major William A. Harn became Head Keeper of the St. Augustine Lighthouse. Keeper Harn and his wife Kate, along with their daughters, became the first residents of the Keepers' House. Life at a light station was busy, and everyone would help tend to the light and grounds. One aspect of this was to greet and entertain visitors. The Harn children loved hearing stories from the outside world as Kate served lemonade on the porch of the Keepers' House.

The Harn family lived and worked at the light station from 1876 until 1889. After William's passing, Kate served as the Second Assistant before moving the family into town and later returning home to Maine. The photograph above was taken at the Harn family home in Maine during the 1920s. Among those pictured are Kate and five of her six daughters.

The trey is the thir Warriors' Curr

C. 1

At an age when most NBA point guards begin to slow down, Steph Curry keeps surprising us.

Indeed, the 33-year-old future Hall of Famer never fails to put on a show and once again he has his Golden State Warriors in position to snag the top postseason seed in the Western Conference with the league's best record.

As of early December, the two-time league MVP and seventime All-Star was among the league leaders in several key categories, including scoring (second with 27.7 points per game) and three-pointers (first with 5.5 points per game). He also has 6.5 assists per game and 1.5 steals, putting him in the top 15 in those categories.

But it is the shot from beyond the arc where Curry has made headlines this season. In draining five treys against the New York Knicks on Dec. 14, Curry passed Ray Allen for the top spot on the all-time list with 2,977. So by the time you read this, he will likely have passed the 3,000 mark.

And then there is the video that went viral last month of Curry launching a shot from a tunnel in the corner of the stands at Chase Center that got nothing but net. If ever there was a legend of Curry as the three-point king to be burnished, this was the video to do it. Curry and the Warriors can be seen in action Wednesday, Jan. 5, when they invade the home court of the Dallas Mavericks in a game airing on ESPN.

'Next Level Chef' – A cooking competition in three dimensions

As cooking competition series go, Fox's "Next Level Chef" certainly takes the prize for originality, both in its concept and its set. And the one-of-a-kind set also gets points for most cubic feet occupied.

The brainchild of Gordon Ramsay, the hourlong series that premieres Sunday, Jan. 2, pits a wide array of competitors – everything from line cooks and home chefs to social media stars and food truck owners – on a gleaming three-story set, each containing a kitchen with a different level of equipment and ingredients. So while the top level has the best of everything, the middle will have somewhat less and the bottom pretty spartan.

Mentoring the contestants through this gauntlet in which they move up and down based on performance will be Ramsay and fellow chefs Nyesha Arrington and Richard Blais, who will each try to bring out the best from their team of competitors.

"It's really like the retelling of my career or Nyesha's or Richard's," explains Ramsay, who is also an executive producer here. "We all started at the bottom working in a lousy kitchen before we could make it to the top. So it's a condensed version of any chef's journey but with a twist, thanks to the ingredients platform. That to me makes this competition unique, because you never know what protein may make it to the basement on that platform." So while a chef upstairs might get a cut of Wagyu beef for their dish, the basement dweller would get ground pork. But that's where the fun begins. Faced with having less at their disposal, the chefs downstairs will have to pull even more tricks out of their hat to compete with those at the top. And that's where the outside-the-box thinking kicks into high gear, according to Arrington.

"I'm in the bottom kitchen so I know that there's not a peeler in this kitchen ...," she says. "(So) when you're grabbing ingredients, you might grab the baby carrots because you know that if you just give those a light scrub they're going to be perfect and you don't have to necessarily go and peel away those older layers of the carrot and you can still bring those to life. So I think something like that is very cool to see the ingenuity behind what they were creating."

In the end, impressive dishes came out of all three levels, both chefs say. But the moral of the story is a real chef can make a delicious meal no matter what they have to work with.

"The bottom level is really about ingenuity and spirit, bringing the spirit of a dish to life ...," Arrington says. "It brought so much emotion out of me just to see the grit and the perseverance that these chefs are bringing to the table. ... You feel like you're on the journey with them."

The third season of this competition series turns its focus on Mexico as it brings in a fresh batch of 10 comics and locks them in a house, where they'll do their best to make their fellow stand-ups laugh. The object, of course, is to be the last one to give in to the giggles. (ORIGINAL)

"Movie: The Tender Bar" J.R. Moehringer's memoir of the same title served as the basis for director George Clooney's coming-ofage drama about J.R. (Tye Sheridan, "The Card Counter"), a fatherless young man trying to pursue his dreams, advised by the many colorful father figures at his bartender uncle's (Ben Affleck) tavern. Lily Rabe and Christopher Lloyd also star. (ORIGINAL)
